A1 Testing & Tagging Pty Ltd is an Australian owned and operated company first established in 2003. We provide a range of electrical testing services, equipment and training throughout Australia and New Zealand by experienced electrical technicians licensed in testing & tagging and OH&S safety trained.

A1 Testing & Tagging uses the Metrel AlphaPAT testing apparatus which provides a full data base of all tests performed and a useful asset register. This specialised testing machinery is unique in that it is the only testers that fully tests 3-phase items to AS3760 requirements and automatically databases the results. The AlphaPAT also safely tests IT and other sensitive equipment.

The philosophy of A1 Testing & Tagging is to provide a fair priced electrical testing service to ensure workplace safety meets with AS 3670. We ensure our technicians are highly trained so we can provide a consistent high standard quality service throughout Australia and New Zealand.

Our services include:

- Testing and tagging
- RCD testing and 3-phase testing and tagging
- Microwave radiation leakage testing
- Equipment sales as agents for Metrotest NZ
- Training in-service for inspection and testing of portable electrical appliances
- Calibration of testing equipment
